

RECOVER BODIES AT NEW MADRID; DEMAND INQUIRY

Army Officers Drag Basin For Other Levee Workers

At Least Fifteen Known Perished, Others on Barge

New Madrid, Mo., Feb. 2.—(AP)—The new waters of the Birds Point-New Madrid, Mo. flood today gave up the bodies of 15 levee workers tonight, raising to 15 the known death toll in the sinking of a barge Saturday night.

The Mississippi had stopped rising and stood just short of 48 feet under the 51-foot dikes.

This news came almost simultaneously with the announcement that ten more bodies had been recovered from the icy waters of an 131,000-acre spillway purposefully inundated to relieve pressure on the levees here and at Cairo, Ill. Five bodies were recovered yesterday.

Before the recovery of the ten, U. S. Army engineers had issued a list of 23 still "unaccounted for" of the more than 100 who were on the barge when it sank Saturday.

Coroner L. A. Richards of New Madrid county made public the findings of the bodies. The office of Col. E. C. Kelton of the engineers confirmed it.

Missouri's flood death toll now is 34. Half that number died in the $21,000,000 dollar spillway, now passing through its first major test as a flood control basin. In addition to the levee workers who perished there, three drowned who waited too long before fleeing the inundation.

As the army continued its search of the basin for bodies and feverishly checked payrolls and other possible sources to account for the men who were on the craft when it sank, Rep. Orville Zimmerman said he had "personally demanded an investigation by the war department of the barge disaster."

The 131,000-acre basin was dynamited open and purposely flooded by army engineers to relieve river pressure of the Ohio and Mississippi. As water gushed across its bottom, from which 5,000 persons fled to safety of refuge camps, an army of levee workers formed along it set back dikes to sandbag them against the possibilities of an overflow.

Tonight the army engineers declared: "Missouri's levees will hold."

Patrols continued along its 27-mile-long retaining wall, however.

LINDBERGHS FLY TO ROME ON HOP TO CAIRO, EGYPT

Presume Couple On Way To Air Event There

Rome, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Litorio airport today on the second leg of a flight from England, presumably enroute to Cairo, Egypt, and drove into Rome by automobile after avoiding a welcoming crowd of 200 persons.

The Lindberghs landed at 4:38 p. m., a little less than two hours after they left Pisa, where they stopped last night after an unannounced takeoff from Lympe, Eng.

The tall American and his small wife, the former Anne Morrow, dashed through a hangar and skirted a dozen airplanes to avoid the pursuing crowd, which extended the Fascist salute. There were a few cheers.

Lindbergh pushed his wife into a small office at one end of the hangar, barricaded himself, Mrs. Lindbergh, Capt. Thomas White, American air attaché, and Capt. Thompson, American naval attaché within, and avoided contact with the well-wishers.

Reinforced by the embassy attaches, the Lindberghs later ventured forth and were driven to the city in Capt. White's automobile.

For a time last night, before it became known they had landed at Pisa, authorities in many countries were on watch, fearing an accident. The flying couple landed at Pisa, a hotel keeper there said, when their gasoline supply ran low during a detour made to avoid a storm in the mountains.

They took time out for a bit of sight-seeing at Pisa, including a visit to the famous Leaning Tower, before flying here. Airport officials said the Lindberghs probably would spend the night in Rome and fly on tomorrow, perhaps to Brindisi.

Col. Lindbergh left orders at the airport to have his plane ready for renewed flight between 7 and 8 a. m.

Lynch Negro For Alleged Assault

Headland, Ala., Feb. 2.—(AP)—A strapping, 18-year-old Negro farm hand accused of assaulting a white woman, was lynched near here today, the nation's first lynching victim of 1937.

A sheriff's deputy found the bullet-marked body of the six foot tall Negro, Wes Johnson, swinging from a tree in a thicket. Several hours earlier 50 men had stormed the Henry county jail at nearby Abbeville and seized the prisoner.

Sheriff Louis Corbett, who said he recognized some of the mob, indicated a special grand jury would be called to investigate. At Montgomery Governor Bibb Graves directed Attorney General A. A. Carmichael to conduct an inquiry.

Johnson was taken from Abbeville jail by the mob in about 25 automobiles.

Johnson was arrested Sunday night, the day after a young matron reported she was attacked while entering her rural home alone.

Medical Society Of City Cooperates In Health Move Here

Less Than 38 Percent Of Children Respond To Drive To Prevent Small Pox

The Medical society of Jacksonville has been cooperating in the city-wide campaign to vaccinate children of school age against small-pox. At present, among the 2,343 enrolled in grade, junior high and high schools, less than 38 per cent of the students have responded to the drive which would prevent any serious developments in the disease.

Letters have been sent to parents by both the board of education and the medical society stating the desirability of vaccination and the readiness of local doctors and the school board to cooperate in every way.

The latter body has not yet seen fit to require 100 per cent compliance, but a high proportion of the children must be vaccinated if the measure is to prove effective.

The following figures show the percentage of vaccinated children in each school, with the total enrollment:

Make Drawings Of Mattson Slayer To Aid Hoover G-Men

News Artist Enlisted to Make Sketches From Descriptions

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover turned today to an artist for assistance in capturing the bearded stranger who abducted ten year old Charles Mattson from his Tacoma, Wash., home December 27.

Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, had a newspaper artist prepare two large pencil drawings from available descriptions of the kidnaper-slayer.

With photographs of the drawings Hoover distributed the following description of the man: Age, about 30; height, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches; weight 145 to 165 pounds; complexion, swarthy.

The kidnaper, Hoover said, does not stand erect; has a hump in his chin, high cheek bones; a broken nose and hairy hands.

Attorney general Cummings has offered a $10,000 reward for his apprehension.

The drawings were made from descriptions given by William and Muriel Mattson, brother and sister of the victim, and Virginia Chatfield, a guest in the Mattson home the night Charles was kidnapped.

ILLINOIS HOUSE DELAYS ACTION ON FLOOD BILL

33rd Eucharistic Congress To Open With Ceremonies

Crowds of Visitors Throng Manila for International Meet

Manila, Feb. 3.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Thousands prayed throughout Manila early this morning, preparing to participate in solemn ceremonies opening the 33rd international eucharistic congress.

Crowds of visiting Catholics and great numbers of Filipinos thronged the dawn and awaited the host. It is to remain in view on altars of adoration until the congress closes on the night of Feb. 7.

The city, festooned with flags, bunting and tropical flowers, took on a mantle of sober silence. In the windows of practically every Catholic home candles flickered a message of faith.

Casting a giant shadow across beautiful Luneta Park, on the shore of Manila Bay, was the eucharistic altar, a great tower which, with the first rays of dawn, becomes the temporary center of the Catholic world.

In this vast park all of the outdoor ceremonies of the congress are to center. The altar stands near the spot where the famous Filipino Catholic patriot, Dr. Jose Rizal, was shot dead by a Spanish firing squad in 1898.

Surrounding the altar, on the far-flung lawns of Luneta, are many special stands and thousands of benches. They will accommodate the worshippers.

Officially, the eucharistic congress opens this (Wednesday) afternoon, with Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, the papal legate, delivering the salutation.

MISSISSIPPI IS NEARING CREST OF HIGH FLOOD

Strong Winds Abate Along Line Of Banked Levees

Confidence Spreads Among 120,000 Flood Fighters

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Encouraging reports brought optimism to the 120,000 mile Mississippi river flood front today while windlashed waters of the stream inched toward a crest.

The tense feeling caused by the coming of the "zero hour" kept United States engineers silent but official, carefully worded statements, but confidence spread among 120,000 flood fighters all the way from Cairo, Ill., to New Orleans.

Strong winds which sent huge breakers pounding against straining levees showed sign of abating. The easing of this additional threat gave the weary pick and shovel army a breathing spell after a night of concern.

At the major danger points, Cairo, Ill., Hickman, Ky., and New Madrid, Mo., and minor areas where crises continued, there were reports of favorable weather and levee-topping operations which brought the barriers higher than the anticipated crest.

Lieut. Col. Eugene Reynolds, district U. S. engineer in charge of the manpower directed against the unruly river, wasn't talking tonight. He watched and waited—for the crest to roll on southward. And he was ready for a battle at which no expense would be spared.

The crest of the Ohio river flood possibly reached Cairo last night, he said, for the river was stationary from 9 p. m. until noon today. The peak of the flood had been reached, he said, at Evansville Sunday. But even another bulge would raise the gauge only slightly at Cairo.

"The Mississippi was stationary at 51.50 feet from midnight to 6 a. m. today at Hickman, Ky., and on a stand at 47.93 feet practically all last night at New Madrid," he said.

"Breaks in the Slough Landing Neck dikes at Bessie Landing, Tenn., gave some relief to Hickman and New Madrid."

A break today in the Slough Neck Landing dike in the vicinity of Bessie, Tenn., caused little concern, since water from previous breaks, widening to 500 and 1,000 feet respectively, was flowing straight across two-mile neck and re-entering the Mississippi at mile 80 and above. Backwater prevented the development of a strong current and there was no indication a new channel was being created.

The escaping water has not gone toward or raised the water level at Tiptonville, but that town was nearly surrounded by overflow water from the banks opposite it.

Circuit Judge Orders Strikers To Evacuate Flint Auto Plants;

PROMISE FUNDS FOR RELIEF IN FLOODED AREAS

Robinson Assures Senate U. S. Will Provide Money

Flint, Mich., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Hundreds of striking automobile workers in possession of two Fisher Body Company plants here since Dec. 30, heard tonight the order of a circuit court judge that they evacuate by 3 p. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Sheriff Thomas Wolcott, carrying a copy of the injunction issued on petition of General Motors Corporation by Judge Paul V. Gadola, went first to Plant No. 2 and then to No. 1, reading its terms to the sit-down strikers who listened in orderly silence.

Good-natured booing accompanied the sheriff's departure from the No. 1 plant, where he had been shouted down Jan. 2 when he tried to read a previous injunction.

Statements looking toward negotiations to settle the nation-wide strike that have slashed deeply into General Motors production came from both sides tonight.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of the corporation, said that as soon as the plants have been "restored to our possession" General Motors will negotiate with the United Automobile Workers of America on the eight union demands made Jan. 4, and added:

"We will do all that lies in our power to make a prompt and honorable settlement."

James F. Dewey, federal labor department conciliator enroute to Flint, arrived in Detroit and conferred at dinner tonight with Governor Frank Murphy. Before Lewis left Washington, Edward P. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, advised him to see Murphy on his arrival tomorrow.

The injunction issued by Judge Gadola directed the strikers, whose occupancy of the Fisher plants has blocked every effort of conciliators so far, to cease occupying the factories, to vacate the premises by 3 p. m. Feb. 3, and to refrain from picketing at the plant or loitering at any places where non-striking employees enter or alight from conveyances enroute from or to said plants.

The corporation in its petition had stated the workers are no longer in the company's employ. Today's injunction ordered them to:

"Absolutely desist and refrain from continuing or being in, on, upon or going upon the premises and plants aforesaid, of plaintiff."

The court commanded that Martin and 29 other defendants, as well as "all other persons to whom knowledge of such injunction shall come," obey the terms "under the penalty of fifteen million dollars to be levied upon their lands, goods and chattels."

Granting of the injunction climaxed a 24-hour period which saw disturbances injuring a dozen persons at the Chevrolet Motor Company plants, and the first movement of National Guardsmen into the actual strike zone. An order appended to the injunction, restraining General Motors from any acts of violence against union members, was eliminated from its final draft at the request of union attorneys who claimed its words were "objectionable" and that it was "dictated by General Motors."

Judge Gadola acted shortly after National Guardsmen, holding a rigid military blockade about the huge Chevrolet Motor Company plants after a night of disorder, set up eight machine guns trained on the street dividing the Chevrolet factory from the Fisher No. 2 plant.

This street was the scene of a bloody riot Jan. 11 in which 27 persons were wounded. The troops arrived the following day, but made their first move into the strike area last night after a dozen persons were injured in renewal of violence.

This afternoon the guardsmen at bayonet point pushed a small group of pickets away from Chevrolet's motor assembly department, Plant 4, scene of a new sit-down strike by several Automobile Workers of America; seized a union sound truck because its operators were "doing too much talking," demolished a picket shanty and detained six men.

Less than two hours later, Judge Gadola read to a crowded court room his decision granting the injunction. Declaring the only issue involved was "possession of property," the judge cited legal precedents, including Supreme Court rulings upholding Michigan's anti-picketing statute.

Give the Corn a Chance

Corn is Central Illinois' most important grain crop. When farmers have a good corn year, other lines of farming usually are more remunerative. At least it seems that way.

Corn had a tough time last summer on account of the drought. The crop was decreased to a large percent by adverse conditions.

If there is anything farmers can do to insure a better corn crop they should do it. Agricultural authorities at the state college of agriculture are now stressing the importance of treating seed corn this year against corn worm damage. Farmers who wish to give their crop the best possible chance to grow and mature will heed the advice of the men who have studied the situation.

Wide spread corn ear worm damage makes it more imperative than ever that the seed corn be treated, according to the associate chief of pathology at the agricultural college. When the seed corn is broken, soil fungi invade the kernel immediately after planting and before the corn germ has had a chance to sprout. This results in weakened plants and reduced conditions not so favorable.

Experiments at the college have shown that fully three-fourths of the loss to yield from injured seed coats can be avoided by the use of good seed treatment. Use of these organic mercury disinfectants has also been found an aid in protecting seed corn from cold soil temperatures and from seed infection.

There are enough hazards to grain farming, as it is. Drought, chinch bugs, grasshoppers and worms make the raising of a healthy, profitable crop of corn a difficult proposition. When experts issue a warning that if heeded will strengthen the chances of producing a successful crop, it seems that the advice should be generally followed.

If Central Illinois farmers can add bushels to their yield next fall by a little advance trouble and expense, the benefits should be worth the effort.

Too Much Legislation

At the opening sessions of the present Congress more than 2,000 bills were submitted in the fond hope that they would be enacted into law.

The total continues to rise. Many things—from reckless experiments with our constitution, to minor relief bills which would dip deeply into public funds for the benefit of constituents press a wide variety of demands.

But is all that legislation and wordage either good or necessary? Obviously not. What the average citizen wants of congress can be expressed in far fewer words and measures. It includes:

Continued protection in the rights guaranteed him under the constitution—among them freedom of religion, of speech and of the press.

Opportunity to conduct his own affairs and live his own life, unhindered by edicts from appointed bureau chiefs or coercion by minority groups.

Relief from needless extravagance in government, which must ultimately be paid out of increased taxes, on both his present and future earnings.

A sincere respect for the constitution of the United States, under which this nation has surpassed all others in freedom and the well-being of its people.

These desires are comparatively few. They impose no great strain on Congress. And if met they will do much not only to retain our successful form of government, but to smooth and broaden the path toward recovery which all the nation seeks to tread.

Too much legislation can block rather than widen that path.

A Bride at Nine

India and China, the missionaries have told us, are countries where child marriage is practiced. Little girls "eleven and twelve years old" are snatched almost from the cradle, and consigned to matrimony.

We have been taught that such customs are heathenish—that enlightenment is needed in these countries where child marriage exists. This is true, but we have overlooked some spots in our own country which are badly in need of adjustment. A nine year old bride in Tennessee is as much of a blot to our civilization as a nine year old bride in India or China.

The nation was shocked the other day when news came out of Sneedville, Tenn., concerning the marriage of Eunice Winstead, a nine year old child, and 22 year old Charlie Johns, a mountain-raised young man.

The ceremony was performed without civil officials raising a hand. A permit for the marriage was issued by civil authorities—it was performed by a minister.

Such an affair would be impossible in Illinois. Marriage of girls less than 16 years of age is illegal in this state. They may marry younger in Missouri. On several occasions in recent years couples under the legal age limit have endeavored to secure marriage licenses in Morgan county, and were refused. They crossed over into Missouri where the laws are less stringent and the ceremony was performed.

There should be no state in the union where a nine year old child is permitted to wed. Tennessee is going to get a lot of adverse publicity from this affair. It's self-respecting citizens, and there are a lot of them, should get busy and see that laws are passed to prevent a repetition of this character.

Child marriages in the south are an exception, rather than the rule. But Tennessee should be certain that nothing of the kind happens again.

On a Large Scale

Jacksonville citizens who witnessed the passing of 350 government trucks through this city Monday evening gained a better idea of the huge scale upon which relief operations are being carried on in the flood regions.

At the same time, they may have formed a mental picture of the vast operations that are now in progress for many hundreds of miles along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and their larger tributaries.

One truck hauls several tons of supplies. A caravan of 350 trucks conveys a sufficient amount of provisions to supply a large town. But this caravan was only one that is moving into the stricken communities. Other truck trains, food, more clothing and more men, are being rushed to the flood areas from all directions.

To residents of this community, the long line of trucks, with crews numbering 750 men, was just an interesting spectacle, significant of what the United States is doing for stricken people. But these trucks mean more to the thousands of refugees now homeless—they carry food, clothing, comfort for people who have been without the necessities of life for nearly two weeks.

The rumbling trucks did not tarry here. Their crews and cargoes are sorely needed in other parts.

24 Days to Live

Mrs. Mildred Bolton, convicted of murdering her husband, is under sentence to die February 26 in the Cook county jail.

Twenty-four days remain in which her attorneys will make final pleas; do everything within their power to block the scheduled execution of the husband-slayer.

Illinois has not executed a woman in modern times. A number of them have been sentenced to pay the supreme penalty, but at the last minute the sentences were commuted to life.

Governor Horner already is studying the case. He has received a report on the woman's mental condition from three Chicago physicians. The contents of the report will not be made known, however, until it has been shown to the Cook county public defender, who will confer with the governor.

On the basis of Illinois' past record in dealing with women criminals, it would seem that Mrs. Bolton may be spared from the electric chair.

The state supreme court has affirmed the death sentence, so that little if any clemency can be expected from that source. But the mental condition of the defendant promises to raise a question which may result in last minute action.

Looters in the Flood

There never was a great disaster that did not point up both nobility and depravity of which human beings are capable.

In a great shipwreck or fire, for instance, there are always tales of men or officers who sacrificed their own lives that others might be saved. And tales, too, of men who even disguised themselves as women to make certain of a place in the lifeboats.

This strange anomaly in human nature is again illustrated in the Ohio-Mississippi flood. While other men are straining every muscle, risking grave danger, to rescue or relieve suffering flood refugees, a few prow through abandoned homes, seeking loot.

Compared with such human conduct, ghouls would seem admirable, warm-hearted people.

It is no wonder that army and civil authorities have been ordered to shoot looters on sight.

Water, Cotton, Bullets

Memphis, Tenn., authorities have used 25,000 bales of cotton, worth a total of one and a half million dollars, to build up a levee section on the Mississippi river. But the work will not cost that amount of money, for the chances are that when the protection is no longer needed the cotton still will be worth one and a half million dollars. Baled cotton is like that. It is impervious to water, under ordinary conditions.

Incidentally, this recalls that Andrew Jackson did not use cotton in his hastily improvised breastworks at the Battle of New Orleans, as accounts in some school histories might have led many thousands of children to believe. The doughty general could have resorted to that defense effectively, but his forces would have been exposed to the possible hazard of fire.

Jackson placed his troops in an abandoned canal or millrace, from which earthworks were thrown up. He did, however, use cotton in a part of his original fortification in preparation for battle. That doubtless explained the earlier accounts, and the drawings showing the American troops firing from behind a line of cotton bales.

If the germs are persistent, it is necessary to treat the condition with active antiseptics or by other methods, to clear up the carrier condition. Infected tonsils are particularly likely to harbor diphtheria germs. In such cases removal of the tonsils usually will banish the germs.

In other cases the throat is swabbed daily with a mild tincture of iodine and nose and throat cleaned with hydrogen peroxide. Persistent treatment in most cases will clear up the carrier condition, usually within several weeks.

Antitoxin, while especially valuable in controlling the symptoms of diphtheria, is not especially useful in clearing up the carrier condition. In that condition, remember, the child carries germs in his throat without being disturbed by such toxin or poison as the germ manufacturer, because he already has developed in his blood the antitoxin to take care of these poisons.

Remember, too, that diphtheria germs are located on the surface of the tissue and are not in immediate contact with the blood.

When diphtheria occurs in schools, orphan asylums, and similar institutions, it usually is necessary in controlling the condition to take cultures from every person in the group, to eliminate carriers as soon as possible.

Reserves Decision On New Trial Plea

Judge Wright Hears Arguments at Second Day of February Term

After hearing arguments of attorneys representing Hubert A. Litterer and Alfred Cowdin and the Illinois Telephone company, Judge Walter Wright reserved a decision on a plea for a new trial argued by the attorney for Cowdin and the telephone company at the second day of the February term of court.

The motion for a new trial is the outgrowth of the decision of a jury rendered at the November term of court in which the plaintiff, Litterer, was awarded damages of $105 for damages which resulted from an automobile accident.

No Sign of Spring Greets Ground Hog; Weather Men Snort

Humans Groan, Look Ahead Six Weeks in Hope for Permanent Warmth

Tuesday the weary ground hog, who has been hibernating all winter, poked his head from his hole in the ground and looked about for a moment. Bright sunshine revealed to him his shadow outlined against a stump or on the frozen meadow grass, and he at once popped back into his burrow, to remain for another six weeks.

Or at least that is what we have been led to believe to be the conduct of the ground hog, on Feb. 2. Of course if it had been cloudy Tuesday the rodent would have come from his burrow and would remain in the open, confident that spring is just around the corner. But as the sun was shining, he concluded there would be six weeks more of winter, and that it was not yet time to get up. That the ground hog has anything to do with the weather is a far-fetched conclusion, though as a rough, untutored child of nature, he may know more about it than we humans.

Anyhow it was ground hog day, and readers may draw their own conclusions as to the weather for the next six weeks. The temperature did not make us long to plant garden or go for a plunge in the old swimmin' hole. It was only five degrees above zero, and much colder for those who had to build fires before dawn. Six weeks from yesterday will be March 16th, when the ground hog will again venture forth to test the validity of spring.

We who are not fortunate enough to be able to hibernate until that date, but must toil onward through the wintry blasts of this rigorous climate, are hoping that when the ground hog comes forth again, we can shed our heavy underwear and use our fishing license.

City Lake Project At Uncertain Stage; No Funds Available

There Is No Assurance of Allotment to Provide Larger Water Supply

That Jacksonville will get its enlarged water facilities, for which it has applied through the Public Works Administration, is by no means certain, it was learned Tuesday. The application for the loan and grant to permit construction of the new lake has been received in the Chicago office of PWA.

The project has been approved and placed on an eligible list for an allotment of funds. But a letter from the Chicago office states that there is no assurance that such an allotment will be made. At present there is a shortage of funds for PWA.

For a time the city seriously considered switching the project to the Works Progress Administration in order to obtain the necessary funds. But a recent conference in Chicago brought out the fact that the change would not lessen the delay, as WPA is also short of funds. Both agencies told city authorities that the future of the project would depend on action taken at this session of congress.

The government has made no allotment of funds for the new water plant, and there is no prospect of any at present. The application remains with PWA, and if the money is allotted, it will be available for the specific purpose of the project and will be sufficient to complete it. WPA reserves the right to discontinue a project at any time funds are not on hand to carry it to completion.

Not Very Wise

By Helen Welshimer

"NOT anything you do can change my love." I spoke in truth by what small light I knew. So sure that always I would find the flame In me rekindled, when I turned to you.

BUT you, whose wisdom was no more than mine, Put to me all the tests of hand and heart, Believing—for had I not told you so— There was no fear that true love could depart.

AND so today I who once thought that I Should love regardless what the winds might bring, Can watch the sun, the sea, the hill's white road, And never care if you should weep or sing.

Jersey County Pair Married Saturday

Miss Edna Beierman and Robert Greiner Wed in Church Ceremony

Jerseyville.—Miss Edna Beierman of Jerseyville and Hubert Drainer of Fieldon were united in marriage at eight o'clock Saturday morning, January 30th, at St. Francis Xavier's church in Jerseyville. Rev. John J. Clancy performed the single ring ceremony and was celebrant at the nuptial mass which followed.

The bride wore an attractive wedding dress of white crepe made along princess lines with the skirt of floor length. She wore a veil of net, fashioned in car effect which was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms. A bouquet of bridal roses and lilies completed the costume.

Miss Beierman was attended by her cousin, Miss Hilda Becker of this city. The bridesmaid wore a frock of aqua taffeta made similar to that of the bride. Her accessories were of silver and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and narcissus. Linus Drainer served as his brother's best man.

During the nuptial mass, a male trio composed of Rev. M. J. Reidy, Herbert Bertman and Dr. B. H. Klueg, sang the "Mass of the Angels" and at the offertory an Ave Maria was sung.

A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents near Jerseyville and covers were laid for fifteen guests. Mrs. Drainer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beierman. She attended the local schools and for some time has been employed at the International Shoe factory in Jerseyville.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Drainer of Fieldon. He attended St. Mary's School in West Woods and is now engaged in farming. The young couple will make their home on a farm in the Kane vicinity.

Routt Defeats Franklin; Blueboys Win Over Hawaiians 50 To 40

Rockets Knock Flashes Off Second Place In Little Six Loop By 18 To 11 Margin

Routt high Roaring Rockets, pitching in field goals in spurts, knocked Franklin high Flashes off second place in the Little Six league of county schools with an 18 to 11 score on the Liberty Hall court last night, and at the same time got revenge for an earlier defeat.

The Rockets tossed in goals with almost reckless abandon during the first two periods, and Franklin matched them shot for shot during the second quarter. Neither team cased a single point during a third quarter in which not over a half dozen attempts to score were made by both teams, and the Rockets finished with another burst of scoring just getting underway.

The Flashes taken over by the school superintendent in the absence of the regular coach, who was forced to remain at home because of illness, scored only one point in the last half of the game, setting some sort of a record for their season. They lost Cliff Bryant in the third period via the foul route, and then Belk went out in the fourth period.

Routt found an effective way of bottling up Frances Rawlings, Franklin's tall center, who did not score a single point, while the Rockets themselves found a little more drive in their attack to lose in seven buckets.

The Rockets had a 10-3 lead in the second quarter before the Flashes began to connect, and then Belk, Bryant and Miles flipped in field goals.

The half ended and so did the hitting ability of the Flashes, although the Rockets began controlling the ball most of the time, and didn't give Franklin many shots inside the center of the court.

The victory followed a second string victory for Routt over the Franklin reserves.

Three Games Open Greene Tournament

Coaches Jittery as Annual Upset Parade Draws Near Tonight

Games Tonight:
 7 p. m.—Roodhouse vs. Kane.
 8 p. m.—Greenfield vs. Patterson.
 9 p. m.—White Hall vs. Eldred.

Carrollton—There was a bunch of jittery coaches sitting around in gymnasiums and coaching basketball teams in Greene county today, the last before the annual upset parade begins on the Carrollton hardwoods tonight when the first three games of the county championship tournament get underway.

Most of the coaches, in their moments of stability, figured that White Hall was the team to beat, but in the other moments, and there were plenty of them, they figured that their first game was the one to win. There is a lot of precedence to support their theory of not worrying about the second game until the first one is over, because there are a lot of instances on record where teams which should have gone to the finals have failed to get beyond the first game.

Logically, say the dopesters, Roodhouse should come through against Kane, Greenfield should win from Beardstown, and White Hall ought to take Eldred, but this Greene county tournament never has been known to stick to logic, and a scalp or two may come off unexpected heads before the curtain is drawn Saturday night.

Tonight's three game card will be followed by two games each night on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Hillview and Carrollton meet Thursday night in a first round headliner, and Rockbridge will play the winner of the Roodhouse-Kane game on Thursday night. Semi-finals will be played Friday night, and the championship and consolation games Saturday night.

Abel Hanson is the general manager of this year's tournament, and he is expecting some large crowds. He has increased the seating capacity of the Carrollton gymnasium to 700 seats, but that may not be enough. Olin Stead has been appointed head scorekeeper, and William Farmer is the head timer. Roodhouse, five times winner in the previous ten tournaments, ranks as the darkhorse. The winners over the ten year period: 1927, Greenfield; 1928, White Hall; 1929, Roodhouse; 1930, Greenfield; 1931, Roodhouse; 1932, Roodhouse; 1933, Carrollton; 1934, White Hall; 1935, Roodhouse; 1936, Roodhouse.

FLOOD conditions are worrying baseball men. Most of the big supply of baseball bats comes out of a factory at Louisville, and there are few clubs available at present. Maybe the bats were used as stays on some of those whiskey barrel bridges constructed during the height of the flood.

BASKETBALL rules have changed considerably since Dr. John Naismith put the game on the court. There were 13 rules to the game when it breathed its first gasp of air. Now there are 113 and as many different interpretations.

As Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden, holder of Braddock's contract to risk his title against Max Schmeling next June, stuck in his trenches with unusual silence, the heavyweight champion agreed to box two opponents for Jacobs Feb. 15.

Braddock will meet Eddie Kotwica, former New Jersey amateur heavyweight champion, and Eddie Cook, a big Negro from Havana. Unless the New York State Athletic Commission insists each fight be four rounds, in accordance with present regulations, Braddock will box two rounds with each.

Under New York state law, the matches cannot be billed as exhibitions, although that's all they amount to. The reason for the two bouts, to be fought on the same card, quite plainly is to test the contract held by the Garden for Braddock's services. Anyway, it's an open challenge to the Garden, which said it would think about it when the time came for the hippodrome fights.

Promoter Jacobs flew in from his Chicago conferences last night. He spent a busy day with Joe Gould, manager of Braddock and lawyers. He had no announcement.

Jacksonville Crimson Walk Into Trap At Springfield; Feitshans Flyers Win 32-22

Springfield, Feb. 2.—Feitshans Flyers of this city outspeeded the Jacksonville High school team tonight 32 to 22, averaging a 22 to 9 defeat the Morgan team administered earlier in the season.

Jacksonville had a chance to breeze away with the situation, as they led 6 to 3 at the end of the first quarter. Feitshans came back with vengeance in the second quarter to run the tally to 13 to 6 in their own favor, while the Jacksonville boys tried vainly to locate the basket.

Feitshans held a 20 to 13 edge as the teams went into the final quarter. Baptist, the big Jacksonville center, topped his team with 7 points. Hayes and Korach were the main cogs in the Springfield machine.

In the curtain raiser Feitshans defeated the Jacksonville reserves 42 to 21.

Sorrells and Wasilewski of Springfield were the officials.

 Ashland Panthers Defeat Greenview

Tournament Champs Keep Up Flashy Work; Visitors Lead at Halftime

Ashland, Feb. 2.—Ashland's Panthers, who Saturday night captured their own invitation tournament consisting of 13 teams, continued to rule the roost tonight in their own gymnasium. They downed Greenview in an interesting 33-31 engagement.

Jumping into the fray with a lot of steam, the locals held an 8 to 4 lead at the end of the opening quarter, but Greenview's boys glued their eyes on the hoops in the second round and were leading at the half 13-11.

Ashland forged to the front 25-22 at the close of the three-quarter mark, and continued to dominate play although the score was uncomfortably close.

Pittsfield Tribe Wins Over Barry

Saukees Run Up Big Score In Downing Rivals In Free-Scoring Game

Pittsfield, Feb. 22.—Throwing the full force of their attack against the visitors, Pittsfield's Saukees Indians tonight lifted the scalp of the Barry pale faces 47 to 32.

The hapless victims didn't give up the ghost without a yelp. Barry was out in front 15-11 at the end of the first quarter, but the Indians commanded the situation 28-18 at half-time. Again, in the third quarter, Barry made a valiant stand and worked within striking distance.

 Ashland Panthers Defeat Greenview

Tournament Champs Keep Up Flashy Work; Visitors Lead at Halftime

Ashland, Feb. 2.—Ashland's Panthers, who Saturday night captured their own invitation tournament consisting of 13 teams, continued to rule the roost tonight in their own gymnasium. They downed Greenview in an interesting 33-31 engagement.

Jumping into the fray with a lot of steam, the locals held an 8 to 4 lead at the end of the opening quarter, but Greenview's boys glued their eyes on the hoops in the second round and were leading at the half 13-11.

Ashland forged to the front 25-22 at the close of the three-quarter mark, and continued to dominate play although the score was uncomfortably close.

Reelfoot Lake in Flood Region Has Peculiar Origin

Local Man Says Region Was Formed in Earthquake During 1811-12

Reelfoot Lake, one of the strategic points along the Mississippi river now occupying the spotlight in the flood news, has a strange history, according to Sid Caldwell of this city, who has hunted and fished in the region many times. Caldwell's home town is Union City, Tenn., about 22 miles from the Reelfoot Lake region and Tiptonville, where flood waters are now threatening destruction. Union City is on the high ground and safe from flood.

Caldwell has a copy of the Union City Commercial, published in 1830, which gives an account of the origin of Reelfoot Lake. Earthquakes, which caused a vast area of land to sink, began in December, 1811, and continued until February, 1812. Subsequent explosions are believed to have caused the tremors and the sinking of the land.

The area, some 30,000 acres in extent, was covered with virgin forests. Today the waters of Reelfoot Lake cover it to an average depth of seven feet. Ancient trees rear their trunks above the flood in many parts of the lake. The trunks live, but the tops are dead, and the region is a vast graveyard of trees.

But there are parts of the lake that are clear of trees and are believed to be very deep. Blue Basin, one of these deep spots, is two miles long and some 400 yards wide. It is claimed that no one has ever found the bottom of this basin, whose waters are as blue as those of the deep sea.

The lake and adjoining marshy regions form a hunting and fishing paradise. Fish of all kinds abound. Wild ducks crowd the waters during the warm season. The swamp banks abound in fur-bearing animals of the smaller varieties.

Tiptonville is located between the lake and the river which puts it in a perilous position at the present time. Should the lake rise, it would overflow many acres of rich bottom lands lying between its shores and the bluff. The lake occupied a much larger area when it was first formed than it covers today.

Granite City Gets Group Nabbed Here For Greene Robbery

Letter Carrier's Coat, Vest Still Missing; Recover Clothing

Four grown persons and a child were turned over to officers from Granite City here and removal to Carrollton where they faced possible charges of stealing clothing from a White Hall home.

Officers from Granite City appeared in Carrollton Monday and claimed the five persons, and took them back to face charge of robbery there.

The group was taken into custody in Jacksonville Saturday night by officers after they had aroused the suspicions of State Highway Patrolman Harvey Dowling, who noticed two men hovering about his home. Police found clothing in their automobile which belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pruitt, of White Hall, whose home had been robbed earlier Saturday night.

The group gave their names as Elmer Wilson, Elmer Irwin, Mrs. Dobson and Mrs. Hingate following their arrest.

Some of the group had entered the Pruitt home at White Hall between 5:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m., obtaining a coat and vest from a new letter carrier's uniform which Mr. Pruitt had recently purchased, a suit of his clothes, a light topcoat, six dresses, two blouses, a suit, a spring coat and a winter coat belonging to Mrs. Pruitt. One of the women was said to have been wearing one of Mrs. Pruitt's coats. All but the coat and vest of the uniform have been recovered.

Chester Castleberry, night watchman from White Hall, W. O. Cuthbert, city marshal, and Deputy Sheriff Everett Painter of Greene county came to White Hall and removed the prisoners to the Greene county jail Saturday night, and when Mr. and Mrs. Pruitt went to Carrollton Monday to file charges, they were informed that the group had been turned over to Granite City authorities.

GROUNDHOG DAY GRIM REMINDER TO FARMERS

They Know Burrowing Rodent All Too Well in Jersey

Jerseyville—Ground Hog Day, Feb. 2, was just a reminder to scores of Jersey county farmers, that the animals are going to be a greater menace in some localities than chinch bugs or promised grasshopper invasion.

In the Phil's Creek locality east of Jerseyville the rodents committed great damage last fall to bottom land farm, destroying hundreds of bushels of valuable grain. In Otter Creek Township the groundhogs are equally numerous and Rosedale and Richwood Township districts reports large colonies of the animals.

There was a time when a bounty of twenty-five cents per scalp was paid by the Jersey county Board of Supervisors, but this was removed about ten years ago. A bounty is being urged by residents of localities where the infestation of the rodents is heaviest.

The Jersey County Farm Bureau the past few years has conducted an annual drive against the rodents, using the cyanogas gas method of exterminating the animals. The chief objection to the latter method is the theory that many valuable fur bearers are often gassed in the same den with the ground hogs.

Rep. Lucas Does Not Want to Name Any More Postmasters

Experienced Trouble with Disappointed Job Seekers, He Says

Washington—When the Ramspeck bill providing for blanket civil service status for all postmasters was up for discussion in the House of Representatives last Thursday, Representative Scott Lucas fairly declared he does not want to appoint any more postmasters.

These were his words: "Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of directing a question or two to the distinguished chairman of the committee on civil service. My only trouble during the last campaign in my district was with certain disappointed job seekers for the office of postmaster. I would like to relieve myself of all responsibility to make the selection, or aid in the selection, of postmasters if legislatively possible."

He went on to say that "the pending bill, if I understand it correctly, provides that first, second, and third class postmasters shall hereafter be appointed without term by the Postmaster General. If we follow the previous system, it is not a fact that the Postmaster General will interview the Congressman of the district in which the post office is situated for the purpose of getting his recommendation on whether or not the incumbent continues for life?"

Ramspeck thereupon said he could not speak for the Postmaster General. Lucas then pointed out that, regardless, the people of his district would hold him responsible for the appointment of a postmaster, and that in so doing, under the proposed law, Lucas would take on a lifetime responsibility in recommending any postmaster.

Trees and Shrubs Discussed in Carrollton; Richey Funeral Held

Carrollton—Max G. Fuller, of the University of Illinois, who is an extension specialist in landscape gardening, was in Carrollton Friday and conducted a meeting at which trees and shrubs were discussed. The meeting was held in the Greene County Farm Bureau office.

Funeral services for Vincent Richey, 73 years, who dropped dead, at 11 a. m., Thursday, while loading wood southwest of here, were held at 2 p. m., Saturday, at the family home. Rev. Milton Wilson, pastor of the local M. E. church conducted the services. Burial was in the Dayton cemetery.

A coroner's jury under Coroner J. Russell Shields, composed of Vearne Richards, foreman; Charles Ballard, Lee McFarland, William Dowdall, Carl Slone and Ralph Varner, after hearing testimony of John Richey, who is a son of the deceased, that he and his father, who seemed to be in the best of health, had driven to a nearby woods and began loading wood, when his father apparently slipped. On reaching him John found him unconscious.

John drove to the house where he met Joseph Shild and returning they found the elder Richey dead. They loaded the body into Shild's car and brought it to Carrollton, to Dr. A. K. Baldwin, who pronounced that the man had been dead about half an hour, and that death had come almost instantly. A verdict that death was caused by angina pectoris was returned.

Freddie Ray, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ray, of Eldred, who sustained a broken leg in a sled accident Wednesday, and had the limb placed in a cast at the White Hall hospital, was brought to his home in Eldred by Everett Mehl in the Mehl and Son ambulance Friday. He is doing nicely.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

Liberal Democracy Is FDR's Determined Aid . . . Bogie of Fascism Gives Cabinet Members Insomnia . . . Trial of Trotskyists Dazes U. S. . . R. Defenders in U. S. . . Fascism Causes Most Worry

By RODNEY DUTCHER
(Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent)

Washington—Anyone who knows the New Deal inside out realizes that one of its most praiseworthy aims has been to keep the United States on the middle road of democracy, and away from the forks which lead to Fascism and Communism.

Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini, and their satellites are still saying it can't be done. Events in Europe, however, have intensified the determination of Roosevelt and his most thoughtful associates.

The administration continues to be attacked from both the right and the left, and it has been called both "Communist" and "Fascist" by persons who usually knew better, but it will bend itself more forcefully, as arising circumstances require, to maintaining a liberal democracy.

All of which is more than a few pious remarks. At least a couple of cabinet members are understood to be awake nights occasionally, worrying about the menace of Fascism. Some of the most "radical" brain-trusters have been almost fatalistically despondent in the belief that Fascism is on the way.

Opinion Divided
There are many in the government who favor one extreme system or the other, and many more who believe a choice between the philosophy of Moscow and that of Berlin cannot for many years be escaped.

And there are still many others who insist that no effort should be spared to avoid the choice. In fact, the issue has become a lugubrious but persistent topic of conversation, and the election hasn't caused it to subside.

Roosevelt will continue to preach democracy. His pointed remarks in the direction of Nazis and Fascists have been more than rhetoric, and he expressed what to him is fundamental philosophy when he spoke of "those whose instinctive faith in humanity made them want to believe that, in the long run, democracy would prove superior to more extreme forms of government as a process of getting action when action was wisdom, without the spiritual sacrifices which those other forms of government exact."

Toned It Down
The first draft of the inaugural speech was even more emphatic and specific at that point, but the president toned it down. If he had felt completely uninhibited in his language, he would have boasted that this country did not yet suffer from any such Fascist-Communist split as threatened France and England, after bringing dictatorship or destruction to other nations. And he would have added that he would work to see there was no such split.

The many persons in the New Deal who have been sympathetic—or at least open-minded—toward the Communist experiment in Russia have been for the most part dazed by the second batch of trials of Trotskyists, with the amazing confessions from "old bolsheviks" now doomed to death.

Attempts to figure out a logical explanation have merely resulted in hundreds of headaches, and, lacking authentic information, insiders here believe that tales of secret drugs or hypnotism that can make men lie about themselves, or even stories that the defendants aren't being shot, are just as likely as any other solution.

Fascism Chief Worry
The net effect is to convince many liberals, who heretofore have been willing to defend Russia, that something is rotten in the U. S. S. R., and that, consequently, it all the more behooves them to battle for preservation of or own type of government, subject to reforms.

There is more worry in high places about Fascism than about Communism because it's generally believed that Communism is making no headway in this country, because it's suspected that some powerful special interests in America lean toward Fascism as an ideal, because Fascism is on the aggressive throughout most of the world, because nearly everyone has taken the Nazi-Fascist invasion of Spain with equanimity, and because of other factors.

It may be, of course, that the various estimable officials who worry are merely "seeing things under the bed."

Even so, it seems worth reporting that there is this great deal of genuine concern in Washington over the American citizens right to think, talk, write, and move around as he darn well pleases.

Setbacks In Prices

Chicago, Feb. 2.—(P)—Successful rallies from price setbacks distinguished wheat trading today, with material net gains shown at the last.

Buying on the part of previous speculative sellers was an outstanding feature, especially in late transactions. Reports of dust storms in parts of Kansas were received and with reports also of thick ice covering fields of domestic new winter wheat elsewhere, misgivings as to likelihood of crop damage were general.

Friends of higher prices stressed statements that for this time of year the United States wheat visible supply total is now the smallest since 1923. Significance was also attached to the fact that wheat primary domestic receipts today, only 147,000 bushels, were the scantiest yet this season.

Chicago wheat futures closed at the day's top level, 3-11 cents over yesterday's finish. May 128-128 1/2, July 112 1/2-1 1/2, Sept. 108 1/2-1 1/2, corn unchanged to 1/2 down, May 105 1/2-1 1/2, July 99 1/2-1 1/2, Sept. 94 1/2-1 1/2 up, May 49 1/2-1 1/2, and rye showing 1-1 gain. In provisions the result was 10 to 32 cents drop.

Selected Stocks
Register Advance

New York, Feb. 2.—(P)—Selected stocks were whirled upward in today's market, many clipping off gains of 1 to 4 points at new recovery tops.

While labor clouds were still plentiful, and flood damages appeared to be much greater than previously estimated, traders seemed to think the worst had been seen.

General Motors cancelled an early loss of a point near the finish when a Michigan court granted an injunction against "sit-down" strikers occupying the company's plants, ordered them out within 24 hours and prohibited picketing. The stock ended unchanged at 66 1/2.

Other automotive issues, reflecting thoughts of a pickup in business for competitive manufacturers if the current "G. M." controversy is long drawn out, exhibited strength from the start.

Chrysler led the group with a net advance of 3 1/2 points at 126 1/2. Higher were White Motors at 28 1/2, Hudson at 23, Auburn at 35 1/2, Packard at 11 1/2 and Studebaker at 16 1/2.

While profit selling reduced extreme upturns just before the close, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks retained a net gain of .7 of a point at 72.7. Transfers amounted to 2,429,500 shares compared with 2,356,170 yesterday.

Following the submission of their recommendations to the secretary of agriculture, Mr. Stahl said: "The soil of the country is sick. It needs building up with soil conserving crops. Our plan provides for putting the soil in a healthy condition so that it will be able to withstand extremes of heat, cold, wet seasons and drought and to rest the land once in every seven years."

Rhubarb Can Be Forced In February, March.

By clearing the snow away from clumps late in February or early in March, rhubarb can be forced. Place a cheap barrel, open end down, over each clump and pile fresh horse manure high around the outside. Cover this manure with peat moss. Permeation will soon start and thaw the ground. Stems will begin to grow and be ready for pulling in three or four weeks. The barrel may be lifted off, but a better way is to knock the bottom out, fasten the pieces together for a cover, and gather the stalks by reaching down to their bases and slipping them loose.

As the season advances, the cover may be left off altogether. Rhubarb so grown is of exceptionally high quality.

Parsley, onions and leeks started in flats during February will be ready to set outdoors before seeds may be safely sown there. Sow very thinly. When the seedlings are an eighth of an inch in diameter, place the flats in a coldframe to "harden off" the plants for a few weeks before transplanting to the garden.

Seedmen Will Discuss New State Seed Laws.

Earl Sieveking, president of the Illinois Seedmen's Association, announced Tuesday the organization would discuss proposed changes in the state seed law at a meeting Thursday in Peoria.

Sieveking said L. A. Moore, superintendent of the state division of plant industry, would outline a proposal that seed grains, including wheat, oats and soybeans, be included with seed corn, clover and other small seeds under state inspection service regulations.

Other speakers listed included Prof. J. C. Hackman and Dr. J. J. Pieper of the University of Illinois.

"Rainy Day" Not Feared By Home Account Families.

While families who do not live near a large river may never know the fear of flood, there is still the "rainy day" of hard luck which may take toll from family pocketbooks.

Such is the opinion of more than 1,000 Illinois homemakers who are starting home account records designed to guide them in spending and saving the family income this year.

With the opening of the new year, groups in sixteen counties, took up the project for the first time.

Mrs. Ruth Crawford Freeman, extension specialist in home accounts, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. This is the largest number of new counties to begin at the same time.

Twenty-four other counties contain many families who are "old hands" at the business of keeping accounts and analyzing their buying and selling.

Counties undertaking the project for the first time are: LaSalle, DuPage, Henry, DeWitt, Greene, Christian, Kane, Montgomery, Shelby, Pike, Coles, Livingston, Ford, Irroquois, Vermilion and DeKalb.

Counties in which the project has been underway for a year or more are: Lake, McHenry, Stephenson, Lee, Rock Island, Mercer, Grundy, Marshall, Putnam, Warren, Peoria, Woodford, Hancock, McDonough, Fulton, Tazewell, McLean, Mason, Scott, Jersey, Macoupin, Knox, Douglas, Piatt, Jackson, Saline and Williamson.

Sweetening Soil Becomes Winter Farm Activity.

Ordinarily considered warm weather tasks, the testing of soil for acidity and the spreading of limestone are being added to those activities such as oiling harness and testing seed which are usually performed during winter months, according to reports received by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, from farm advisers throughout the state.

Active interest during winter months in testing soil for acidity and phosphates and in applying limestone to sweeten the soil for the growing of legume is indicated in re-

Farm and Rural Interest

Oglesby and Stahl Present Farm Plan to Wallace During I. A. A. Sessions; Would Rest Soil Every Seventh Year; How to Speed up Rhubarb; To Discuss Seed Laws

A proposed farm plan, by which the soil would be rested every seventh year, was presented to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace by John G. Oglesby and Charles S. Stahl of Elkhart, during the Illinois Agricultural Association meeting in Chicago last week.

The conference with Secretary Wallace resulted from a recent interview Mr. Oglesby had with President Roosevelt, when after a discussion of the farm problems the president suggested that Mr. Oglesby present his plan to the secretary of agriculture.

Secretary Wallace declared the Stahl-Oglesby plan is practically the same as the government's program, with some of the mechanics taken out.

"The trouble with the government farm program," insisted Mr. Oglesby, "is that it is so involved that the farmers can't understand it. What we farmers want is a simple, workable plan, understood by all. That's the kind of plan we have worked out."

Following the submission of their recommendations to the secretary of agriculture, Mr. Stahl said: "The soil of the country is sick. It needs building up with soil conserving crops. Our plan provides for putting the soil in a healthy condition so that it will be able to withstand extremes of heat, cold, wet seasons and drought and to rest the land once in every seven years."

Hogs, Lambs Higher;
Cattle Turn Lower

Chicago, Feb. 2.—(P)—With producers continuing to hold livestock marketings to a small volume, hog and lamb prices scored another good advance today but cattle turned lower.

Hogs closed 10 to mostly 15 cents higher on top of yesterday's 25 to 50 cents upturn. Spots showed even more gain in instances. The extreme top rose to $10.40, compared with $10 at the close last week.

Fat lambs gained 25 to 40 cents, top rising to $10.50.

The main stimulating factor in the market was the decrease in supplies. The hog run of 14,000 head was 9,000 below expectations. Yesterday's run was cut more sharply than that. The sheep supply of 4,000 head was less than half the advance estimate.

Hogs gained stimulus, also, from the fact that fresh pork loin wholesale prices advanced another 1 cent a pound, indicating improved meat demand.

The cattle trade was sluggish, with prices unchanged to 25 cents lower, only a few choice and prime heifers holding up. Top was $14.35, which was paid for light steers. The dressed beef trade was dull, according to reports.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

BIRDS can digest large quantities of food very quickly, in spite of the fact that they have no teeth with which to chew it. Some birds partially crush their food with their beaks. High temperatures of birds, combined with their perfect respiration and rapid circulation, aid in the rapid digestion.

German Singer Next on Artist Series Program

Ernst Wolff to Sing German
Folk Songs at Concert
Here on Monday

The members of the MacMurray-Community Concert series will gather for their fourth concert next Monday evening. The artist will be Ernst Wolff, a brilliant young German baritone, who is touring the country to present a program of German folk songs. Mr. Wolff is the only vocal soloist who will appear on the local program this year.

Although the "lieder" of Mr. Wolff's programs are sung by most Germans from early childhood, they represent in their finished form the blending of the work of the country's most eminent poets and composers. Writers such as Goethe, Heine, Eichendorf, and Muller have prepared the lyrics, while the music has been written by such masters as Schubert, Schumann, Franz and Brahms.

Still under thirty, Herr Wolff has had a remarkable career. He was born at Baden, in the Black Forest region, and studied there and at Frankfurt am Main and Berlin. At the conclusion of these studies he was a finished pianist and accompanist and gave recitals and played piano concertos with orchestra. At the same time he was head of the Frankfurt School of Opera at the Conservatoire. As a guest conductor of the Frankfurt opera he took part in the International Chamber Music Festival at Baden-Baden and other towns.

Becomes a Singer

Convinced that a conductor should have full understanding of voices, and having a good baritone voice, he studied singing. At a dress rehearsal, one of the actors being suddenly indisposed, Wolff took the baritone part and sang it so well that his operatic colleagues urged him on as a singer and predicted as great a success for him on stage as in the pit. This has come true in nearly all the large towns of central Europe.

In this country Ernst Wolff is known as a leader singer. A leading phonograph company chose him to record its latest album of twenty-four songs by Robert Franz (Masterworks Set No. 225). In announcing this album, the company's editor says: "The interpreter of these lovely songs is a young German baritone, Ernst Wolff, who revives the lost art of singing to his own perfect accompaniment, in the manner through which the celebrated Sir George Henschel became famous. This unusually talented young artist, in addition to his accomplishments as a distinguished singer and pianist, held a post as conductor at the Frankfurt Opera. Bruno Walter writes of him: 'Herr Wolff is a most gifted young artist with a special talent for the singing of Lieder to his own accompaniment. His full musicianship and warm heart enable him to make a deep impression on his listeners and the high artistic standard of his achievements is supported by the excellent technical domination of his fine baritone voice. I recommend Herr Wolff with full conviction as a most interesting artist.'"

"THE ROSTRUM" TELLS OF DECISION TO HOLD DEBATE TOURNEY HERE

In the February issue of "The Rostrum," the official publication of the National Forensic League, an article is devoted to the awarding of the coming national meet to Jacksonville. The story announces the decision made by the league's executive committee and then continues to tell of Bruno Jacob's visit to the town and his resulting opinion that local facilities are of a first class nature.

Henry C. Jewsbury, et al., are complainants in a suit filed in circuit court yesterday afternoon against the Coking Oil company, in which judgment amounting to $5,000 is requested. Vaught, Foreman & Cleary are the attorneys for the complainants.

According to the complaint an agreement was entered into between Thomas and Henry Jewsbury, brothers, and the oil company on August 21, 1934. Subsequently Thomas Jewsbury died and Henry Jewsbury as executor of his brother's will assigned the decedent's interest in the contract to the complainants, Henry, Tirzah and Amanda Jewsbury, which they now own.

Pursuant to the terms of the agreement the defendant paid $800 on the contract, the last payment being made on March 14, 1936. By virtue of the default of the defendant in making further payments the complainants have declined to declare the entire unpaid under the said agreement due and payable. Franklin, Ill., Feb. 2.—Direct telephone communication with Jacksonville was established late this afternoon, when the Illinois Telephone company and the Central Illinois Telephone company completed the rebuilding of lines damaged by the sleet storm on January 7.

Following the storm there were only 30 telephones working out of the exchange. The company brought several linemen into this district and about half of the telephones have been placed in service.

100 Troops in 1937
A detailed description of the various steps in council organization and the various functions of each was given by the executive staff. The objective for the Abraham Lincoln council for 1937 recommended by Robert Lawler, president of the council, calls for 100 troops embracing a membership of 2,000 boys by the end of the year.

The Osage district to support this ambitious objective must establish 13 new troops to include a membership of 267 Scouts.

Following Mr. Hesser's address, round table discussion was held in which all present participated.

Field Executive Fisher, recently assigned to the west section of the council which includes six districts, then spoke on the definite steps which are being made to organize Scouting in Jacksonville and the surrounding area. Mr. Fisher spoke about a recent Boy Scout survey made among boys 12 and 13 years old in the Jacksonville schools. In this group 280 indicated their desire to become members of troops.

On Sunday, Feb. 7, special services will be held at the Grace M. E. church, State Street Presbyterian church and during services held at the Illinois School for the Deaf. In all churches a special message pertaining to the movement will be read.

Plan Mobilization Day

These include James N. Conover, James N. Walker and Thomas Coyle. These men have been awarded the silver beaver trophy, a recognition given for exceptional service in the advancement of the program.

Scout Day in Schools
Tuesday, Feb. 9, will be recognized as Scouting day in the public schools, and on Wednesday the Illinois School for the Deaf troop will be host to the teams entered in the Midwest First Aid contest in which teams from Osage district and the Todd district representing Scott county will compete.

Thursday and Friday of Scout week will be given over to special handicraft exhibit and active demonstration by Troops 107 and 114. The show window of Myers Brothers clothing store will be used for this demonstration which will take place each evening between 5 and 8 p. m.

The program for Boy Scout Week promises to bring Scouting to attention of many citizens in the community.

This will be followed by a prayer and spiritual enrichment service.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the February meeting of the official board will be held. All persons interested in the work of Centenary are welcome to attend this meeting and get first hand report of what is being done.

Thursday evening 8:15 the choir will hold rehearsal at the parsonage. Services for Sunday were full of interest and all were very well attended. A large audience heard Rev. Blair's sermon the subject, "The Afterglow," based on Luke 24:32. "Did not our hearts burn within us?" It was a most beautiful exposition of the incident following the resurrection where the Christ appeared to his disciples and talked with them and opened the scriptures.

Miss Doris Robinson was the soloist, rendering "The Garden of Prayer."
